

Connections

Nothing in the cry of cicadas suggests they are about to die

Nothing in the surge of the millions emerging sings a cry for help

Nothing in the sound that you hear reveals the truth of their life story

Nothing in the high pitch frequency of their song suggests I love you

Nothing in the years they spend underground helps us understand at all

Nothing in the hot summer sun tells the story of finding true love

Nothing in the life of cicadas alludes to the journey they've made

Nothing in nature can be fully understood from one sound one sight

Nothing in the drawn image of a cell insists they are just science

Nothing in the cells together by the millions says I am lonely

Nothing in the sight you see gives even a hint
of their life story

Nothing in its shape leads us to understand their complex genetics

Nothing in its shades tells the story of where all their beauty came from

Nothing in a brief look at an image shows the essence of its grace

Nothing in textures of the cell hints that science is to take credit

Bibliography

Bunker, Gerry. "Behaviors." Massachusetts Cicadas. 18 June 2008. 17 Sep 2008 <<http://www.mechaworx.com/Cicada/masscic1.asp>>.

"Cicada." Wikipedia, The Free Encyclopedia. 16 Sep 2008. 17 Sep 2008

<<http://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Cicada&oldid=240257764>>.

"Diatom." Nation Master. 2005. NationMaster.com. 18 Sep 2008

<<http://www.nationmaster.com/encyclopedia/Diatom>>.